

The Fringes of Justiciability: A Symposium in Honour of Ian Leigh

13 May 2022

E101, Lower Mountjoy, Durham University

Welcome and Introduction 10.00-10.30

Roger Masterman (Durham Law School)

Public and Human Rights Law 10.30-12.15

Petra Butler (Victoria University of Wellington), 'Access to commercial Justice – is there a parallel Universe?'

Laurence Lustgarten (Oxford University), 'At the Fringe of The Fringes: The Public Law Consequences of the Arms Trade'

Julian Rivers (University of Bristol), 'On the genealogy of constitutional rights'

Chair: Ben Yong (Durham University)

Lunch (Common Room, Durham Law School) 12.15-13.30

National Security Law 13.30-15.00

Iain Cameron (Uppsala University), 'Reflections on devising satisfactory oversight of intelligence agencies'

Hayley Hooper (Oxford University), 'National Security oversight in the UK Parliament'

Colin Murray (Newcastle University), 'The Zamora Doctrine, then and now'

Chair: Jessie Blackbourn (Durham University).

Coffee 15.00-15.30

Law, Religion and Conscience 15.30-16.45

Nicholas Aroney (University of Queensland), [title tbc]

Eva Brems (University of Ghent), 'Face Covering Revisited: Re-reading SAS v France after the Pandemic'

Chair: Se-shauna Wheatle (Durham University).

Reflections 16.45-17.15

Ian Leigh (Durham Law School), 'Mapping the Unjusticiable: A Preliminary Survey'